II. Reading Comprehension

Passage 1

Most wedding ceremonies involve two requirements. First, the man and the woman must say that they want to become husband and wife. Second, the ceremony must have witnesses, including the official who marries the couple, if a couple has a religious ceremony; it is conducted by a member of the clergy, such as a minister, priest, or rabbi. If a couple is married in a civil (non-religious) ceremony, a judge or some other authorized official performs it. During the days of long sea voyages, the captain of a ship was authorized to conduct a marriage ceremony while the ship was at sea.

41. What is the second requirement for a wedding ceremony?
